

Philips Airfryer Privacy Notice

This Privacy Notice was last updated on February 08, 2019.

The Philips Airfryer app ("App") provides users with healthy food recipes, cooking tips and tricks, tutorial videos, and allows users to create shopping lists and check our range of products and accessories available in your country ("Services"). The App uses personal data collected or processed through the App.

The purpose of this Privacy Notice is to help you understand our privacy practices when you use our Services, including what data we collect, why we collect it, and what we do with it, as well as your individual rights. This Privacy Notice applies to personal data collected or processed by the App, which is controlled by or under control of Philips Consumer Lifestyle B.V. or any of its affiliates or subsidiaries ("Philips", "our", "we" or "us").

which you use our Services.

Please also read our Cookie Notice and Terms of Use, which describe the terms under

We receive or collect personal data, as described in detail below, when we provide our Services, including when you access, download and install the App.

What Personal Data are collected and for which Purposes

We collect your personal data when you create an account. You may login to the App using a MyPhilips account or by using your social media profile. The personal data we collect may include your first name, username, profile picture, email address, gender, birthday/age, country, language and password. For users in China, we also collect the users' phone numbers. ■ The personal data collected is used to create and manage your account. You can use your account to securely login to the App. If you create a MyPhilips account to login to the App, we will send you a welcoming email to verify your username and password, to communicate with you in response to your inquiries, to send you strictly service-related announcements, or direct marketing communications in case you have opted-in. You may also use your MyPhilips account to order a Philips product or service, participate in a promotion or game, participate in a social media activity related to a Philips promotion (for example clicking "like" or "share"), and participate in product testing or surveys. Because we use your Account Data to provide the Services, we consider this processing to be necessary for the performance of a contract to which you are party and lawful under Article 6.1. (b) of Regulation (EU) 2016/679.
